St Barnabas Public Forum, 29th November 2017 at 8pm:

“The role of schools in shaping values for the next generation.”

Presented by: Gary Savage (Alleyn's), Steve Morrison (Kingsdale), Alex Crossman (Charter School East Dulwich), Sally-Anne Huang (JAGS), Cameron Pyke (Dulwich College).

The disparagement of education and rational analysis is quite new in Britain. Do we prefer emotional appeal rather than facts? How do we define “truth” in a world of different cultures and peer pressures? Where does the school take over from the diverse cultural approaches of parents in teaching values? Whose values do we teach? Do we have rights to be different? How does culture influence our concept of right and wrong? What is the influence of IT and alternate facts?

There are many aspects to this debate by headteachers, perhaps touching on science, beliefs, emotion and values. The subject is of concern to local schools, parents, teachers, the local community and our children

To reserve your place at this debate please apply via “Events” on St Barnabas’ website or via Church App - refreshments after in the foyer.

Friends Bake Sale

On Friday 1st December, from 3:15pm, The Friends of The Charter School East Dulwich will be holding a bake sale at school. Please bring all cake donations to the office in the morning and please make sure your child remembers to bring some money to buy cakes on the day!

School Mural

Pupils are continuing work on the school mural with James from Aero Arts. The mural is part of the successful bid to the lottery fund, put together by The Friends of Charter School East Dulwich, to make the school grounds a more welcoming and a greener place to be.
